Vrindavan: BJP MP and former actor Hema Malini Friday launched a mass cleanliness campaign in this holy town in Uttar Pradesh.

The Bharatiya Janata Party leader also administered a pledge calling upon students and people to commit themselves to cleanliness.

She later went through the main markets urging shopkeepers and residents to ensure that their town remained clean.

At one point, Hema Malini picked up the broom to demonstrate how people should keep their surroundings tidy.

Along the Yamuna, students from the Bhakti Vedanta Gurukul along with Friends of Vrindavan group spent two hours to pick up trash from the river bank.

Shambhu Linga - 19 days ago this tamilain biitch who talked nonsense about widows of Mathura shud be kicked out from BJP !
devlukum - 19 days ago The local govt. bodies like municipality gram panchayat should teach ordinary persons about recleable waste and they evolve some management or practice for throwing. I find many persons in train journey throw plastic bottles out of window from running train at remote places and in between places or at places from where it is difficukt or impossinle to collect. These plastic bottles either be kept in compartment to be collected by bottle collector or putting at corner of platform where they alight. Bottle collector will immediately collect the same. PET Plastic nottle is having big recycling industry. It is crushed and use as yarn for Industrial fabrics. Further pitting used bottle at place with easy avess for collectors can result in 100% recycling of Bottles and also gives earning to Bottle collectors. This is one of way of charity. Therefore I urge all citizen that recyclable materials like Pet Bottles, Corrugated Boxes, Paper Board Plastic articles should be disposed of separately without any other waste by placing at clean corner of road or platform and collector of recyclable material will collect in no time.
