LUCKNOW: Following a slew of development initiatives announced for the state, the Uttar Pradesh government has now proposed a monorail project connecting Noida with Agra. The project, which was granted an in-principle approval, is expected to come up on the east bank of the Yamuna and would travel nearly 200 kilometre, from Mahamaya flyover in Noida, to night safari, Buddha International circuit, international cricket ground, to Mathura and finally to Agra.

The decision, which comes close on the heels of Lucknow's Metro rail project has also been cleared by chief minister Akhilesh Yadav and is expected to decrease travel time between the two cities to just over one hour. On November 19, after due deliberation in Lucknow, the project was given a green signal. Government officials said the project will be built on the lines of the Sydney Monorail project. On Monday, chief secretary Alok Ranjan said the the UP government has directed the Noida Metro Rail Corporation to execute the project.

A detailed project report, which will also give details of how the project will be funded, however, is yet to be prepared. Sources in the government said, a timeline for the execution of the project will also be clarified as a part of the DPR.

Irfan ji, I also was happy to hear... but then I thought again and found that... (1) It will be very costly..... (2) Already they have Expressway & Fastest railway network to reach from NCR.... (3) very high operation & maintenance cost ..... so what is logic behind it???...... UP is beyond Noida & Agra .... and Railway is already bringing semi system.....

Just an Idiot. instead of upgrading the line may be making it fit for higspeed corridor. These idiots say that they are educated bt don't llok like. Monorails and other MRT systems are for short distances. I have never heard of far off cities connected by it. BSSs ai expect it is more for making money than for the practical economic reason self economics is a part of it)

Another drama project from the Whisky Party leader Akilesh. How can a monorail transport about 200 people at the most be of great use in transporting UP people from Noida to Agra. UP population is in lakhs. What UP needs is a mass rapid transit rail system to transport at least 1,500 in one trip. It takes time to build and develop one but Whisky Party leader Akilesh is in a hurry to promote playful monorail as Whisky Party leader Akilesh has his eyes on the next UP assembly elections. The UP voters are not fools and have realised
